Accreditation and certification fees

Accreditation fees of AIREP depend upon the size of the applicant company; the number of people working in international property for you dictates the fee payable. A 'person' is defined as someone working a 35-40 hour week under your company name. Please note that this does not just mean salespeople; it means all people working in this market for you, including self-employed people. NB: If you have part-time staff, the general rule is that 2 part-time staff equals 1 'person'.

Sole trader - Company with up to 3 employees - Independent professional:

A one off €50 administrative fee must accompany this application (non refundable).
A further €350 certification and registration fee to be paid if and when you meet AIREP's requirements for accreditation. Certification and registration must be renewed annually with a recurring cost of €350.

4 to 10 employees:

A one off €50 administrative fee must accompany this application (non refundable).
A further €650 certification and registration fee to be paid if and when you meet AIREP's requirements for accreditation. Certification and registration must be renewed annually with a recurring cost of €650.

More than 10 employees:

A one off €100 administrative fee must accompany this application (non refundable).
A further €1000 certification and registration fee to be paid if and when you meet AIREP's requirements for accreditation. Certification and registration must be renewed annually with a recurring cost of €1000.
